

The Goat Rancher Advantage

With its monthly information on marketing, health and production, Goat Rancher has been a valuable tool for goat producers of all sizes — from the rancher with 5,000 head to the hobbyist with two or three goats in the backyard. Whether you produce livestock, fencing, feeds, livestock supplements, tractors, ATVs, medications or any of the many other items needed by today's farmer, Goat Rancher is your direct connection to the decision-makers on thousands of livestock operations.

Goat Rancher is the only major goat publication that is published monthly. That means our news and advertising are delivered in a timely manner, which makes it easier to schedule and coordinate your advertising campaign.

Since its founding in 1996, Goat Rancher magazine has been the one-stop source for all things goat-related. Goat Rancher is filled each month with news of upcoming events, reports on major production sales, producer profiles and fun features like recipes and family goat photos. Our monthly columnists answer questions and offer helpful advice each issue on health matters, marketing, nutrition, herd management and much more.

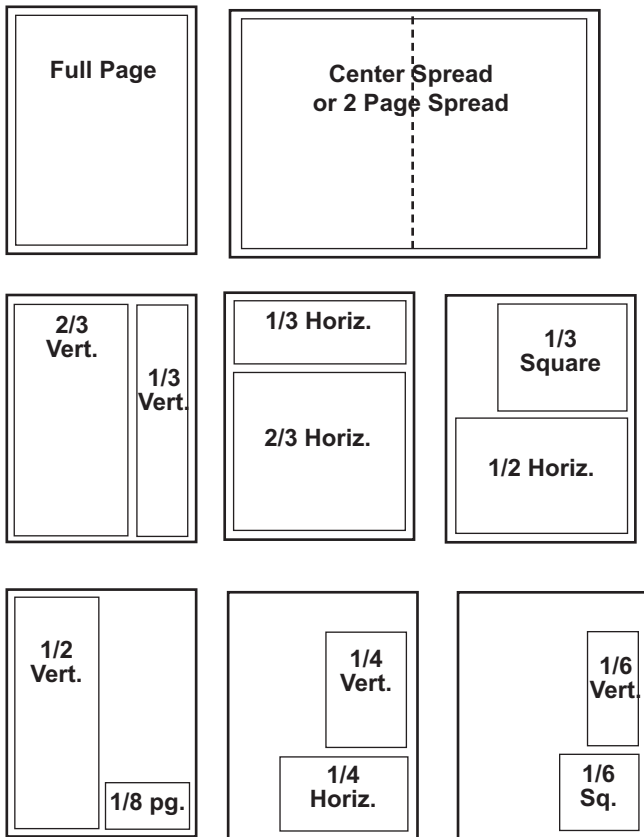

Goat Rancher is published monthly from Egypt Creek Ranch, a working meat goat operation in northwest Mississippi. Editor and publisher Terry Hankins is a career journalist and a lifetime farmer and rancher — a unique combination that brings professionalism as well as common agricultural knowledge to the pages of Goat Rancher. In addition, no other magazine staff covers as many goat events, attends as many goat functions or meets as many goat producers as do the writers for Goat Rancher.

No facsimiles accepted. All photos and print-ready advertising should be submitted as pdf, jpeg or tiff files and should be 200-300 dpi or higher for best quality reproduction. Photo adjustment, including cropping, color adjustments & resizing available. No modifications will be made to any photos, graphics or camera-ready ads that in any way distorts or substantially alters the original appearance or intent of submitted materials. Advertising customers requesting graphic design services should include any layout, color or design preferences when submitting advertising materials. Goat Rancher is produced on Macintosh computers using Quark Xpress and Adobe Photoshop. We can accept other applications, however, some distortion may occur.

Proofs: Available upon request. Proofs sent by e-mail (pdf format). After receipt of proof, advertisers are required to notify publisher of any errors or changes to be made prior to publishing date. Exact date/time in which changes can be made may vary. Final change deadlines to be included with proof or contact your account manager. Publisher is not responsible for any errors or omissions if not notified by advertiser within time period specified.

Camera-Ready Ads. Goat Rancher will accept camera-ready advertising in pdf, jpeg or tiff formats. Publisher is not responsible for errors in content or the reproduction quality of camera-ready ads. Camera-ready ads should meet the requirements specified on our Standard Ad Sizes & Specification Sheet or additional charges, not to exceed 25% of the purchase price of the insertion, may apply. Goat Rancher cannot guarantee quality reproduction of Word, Publisher or other layouts created on home computers.

Ownership. Ads designed by and/or placed in Goat Rancher are the property of the advertiser unless otherwise specified. Upon request, we will forward ad materials to other publications for use. Goat Rancher is not responsible for errors in content or the reproduction quality of advertisements once they are no longer under our control. Advertisements will be sent as they appeared in Goat Rancher. Additional charges may be incurred if modification or resizing is required.

Publisher reserves the right to decline publishing any advertising that does not meet with the editorial approval of Goat Rancher LLC Advertisers assume liability for all advertisement content.

GOAT RANCHER EDITORIAL CALENDAR

Throughout its history, Goat Rancher has been news and event-driven, covering the major developments in the meat goat industry in a timely manner. Each issue contains the latest news from major shows and sales, current marketing trends and the latest developments in health and nutrition. In addition, each issue also focuses on a topic of interest to our varied readership. Our monthly topics are listed below:

JANUARY — KIDDING

Articles in this issue focus on the health, nutrition and management of the doe herd and newborn offspring.

FEBRUARY — FENCING/MAINTENANCE

Spring is just around the corner. Ranchers are making plans for that next fencing project, patching up the barn roof or building a bigger feed shed.

MARCH — HOMESTEADING

Millions of Americans are raising a garden, canning their own vegetables or producing goat meat and milk for their families. We take a look at this growing trend to be self-sufficient in uncertain times.

APRIL — PRODUCTION SALE FORECAST

This edition focuses on the spring and summer round of Boer and Kiko production sales. Take this time to get your sale on the calendar of events and let potential buyers know what you have to offer.

MAY — KIKOS

Our annual spotlight on the Kiko, a breed of goat developed in New Zealand that continues to grow in popularity. This issue highlights Kiko breeders and Kiko events planned for the summer and fall.

JUNE — SIRE EDITION

An opportunity for breeders to spotlight & promote their best herd sires. This issue is distributed free at the national Boer goat show and other goat events throughout the summer.

JULY — CUISINE

Focus on goat meat eatery: where to get it and how to prepare it, including home-tested recipes, side dishes and more.

AUGUST — NICHE MARKETING

Goat farmers sell meat, soap, cheese, fiber products and more through farmer's markets, mail order, websites, trade shows and flea markets.

SEPTEMBER — YOUTH

Meat goats have become one of the most popular FFA and 4-H youth projects. This issue explores how young people can make the most of their showing experience.

OCTOBER — FEED & FORAGE

Whether planting winter pastures, storing hay or buying grain, goat producers across the nation begin making plans for the winter season.

NOVEMBER — OTHER BREEDS

In addition to Boer and Kiko goat news, this edition looks at other breeding options — including Savanna, Spanish, Myotonic, Pygmies and more.

DECEMBER — PREDATORS/GUARDIANS

Advice and new developments on how to protect livestock from predation and on the types of predators that could threaten your herd.
